"A health to the groom,
May his brown never gloom
Nor sorrow succeed to his mirth,
May the rich and the poor Hair gladoess his dogr.
And plenty crown richly his hearth.

"A bealth to the bride, Of her circle the pride; And the comforts of lite surround her, And Joy's golden rays
Gild the close of her days,
And the blassings of heaven attend her.'

Married.

At the bride's parents, on Wednesday, November 12; Mr. Mark Fancher to Miss Lucy A. Commings, Rev. J. M. Hardy, of California, officiating, The Wedding was a private and calmand happy one; the attendants, with the exception of the family, were Mrs. J. M. Hardy, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Henley, Misses Aivona and Ida Johnston, and Mesers M. R. Can'les, S. H. Sons, Pail. Haun teln and F. G Fulkerson. After the coremony and congratulations a magniff cent supper was spread for the guests, and in due ome the good night was given the most sin core, the happlest twaln of God's noble works. and may Ho be their guard and guids through life.

At Hancock Nov. ard, of disease of the boart. In her 15th year, Laura P., youngest daughter of Dr. A. J. and Sarah Moore, and sister of Dr. J. H. Moore, Iperia. For some time past her bealth has been declining and every means that medical skill could devise have been employed to save her from an untimely graye, but in vain. Like some frail and beautiful flower before the wintry wind she has passed away, and all that is mortal of her now sleeps in the cemetry near Iberia. Lovely and piersant in life she was endeared to all her acquaintances, the pride of her tamily, the joy of her home, the staff and the stay of her parents declining years. Too good for earth the heavenly shepherd bas taken her into he fold above, she has gone but a little while before to welcome her disconsolate kindred and friends to glorious and perpetual re-union in Heaven.

OUR SCHOOL.

We were gratified on visiting our public school this week to see such a lively luterest taken by Prof. Lumpkin and his scholars. The school room is his home and hence he is it is entirely too lengthey for the perusal of not at a loss for anything. Everything moves like clock work, and the school is doing well. We obtained from his class register his a phabetical list of the names of his saveral classes in the order of their respective grades, as follows ;
